Walking amid the colors of life in North Carolina

As the black shadows of pandemic subside, the nature has started to give calls to the travel-starved global citizens. 'Visit North Carolina' has new plans to endorse the new adventures for the future traveler. With travel security and revitalised destination management plans, North Carolina is back to steal the shows.

Autumn walks through North Carolina forests

North Carolina is a color pallet that offers refreshment which is an annual wait. The colorful gesture of the nature is slowly exposed as the traveler moves towards the lap of the lustrous forest. Vivid colors with accidental patches of yellow, red, green, and orange reminds the traveller about nature's artistry. A location that is filled with surprising water springs and exotic hilly areas is a treat and brings back the enthusiasm for life.

'North Carolina' wants to rethink tourism

North Carolina is learning to choose their tourists. It is not just enough to possess a beautiful treasure but it is important to be able to protect the beauty as well. The director of 'Visit North Carolina', Wit Tuttel says that though North Carolina is not often counted among the most popular destinations, but when tourists visit the place, they know what treasures they are accessing. Tourism department wants the tourists to know the culture and heritage of the country.

As per Wit Tuttel, since much marketing has not been done, it is necessary for them to target the right customers and match with the marketing demands. They are expecting a comeback wave after a long time.

Hidden gems in the forest

North Carolina forest is home to many rare animals and plant species. The colors of leaf, vegetation, and trees are home to species like black bear, squirrel, raccoon, and white-tailed deer. There are some rare species of flora like oak-hickory, oak-pine, gum cypress, and longleaf-slash pine.

National forests like Pisgah, Nantahala, Croatan, and Uwharrie are home to several rare plants and springs. It is estimated that there are about 1447 billion trees that produce a significant amount of global oxygen. Sometimes, nature hides out the most valuable gems in the easiest place to find. It is the responsibility of the traveler to look for major changes in the nature. The better a traveller knows to dig, the better results they get. Couple of locations explain the treasures better.

Grandfather Mountain

Being the highest peak in the Blue Ridge mountain range, Grandfather Mountain demands the command that any grandfather would. With the correct weather conditions, it is possible to see about 100 miles from the peak of the mountain. The high bridge that swings in the wind has a magical appearance. The bridge connects two mountains, walking on which a traveler feels like walking on top of the world. With wind speed up to 200 mph (320km/h), the mountain has a vibe of an adventure. Besides the beauty, it has the most challenging hiking route trails in the south. The location is close to a quiet town that has a plenty of attractions.

Linville Falls

It is a gorgeous waterfall with easy access from Blue Ridge Parkway. The most popular waterfall from the entire North Carolina, Linville falls attracts thousands of the travelers each year. There are five locations with different levels of difficulty in the hiking.

The four locations offer breathtaking visual memories to take home. The traveler can follow the streams before they jump on the Lake James. It is recommended to spend a full day here.

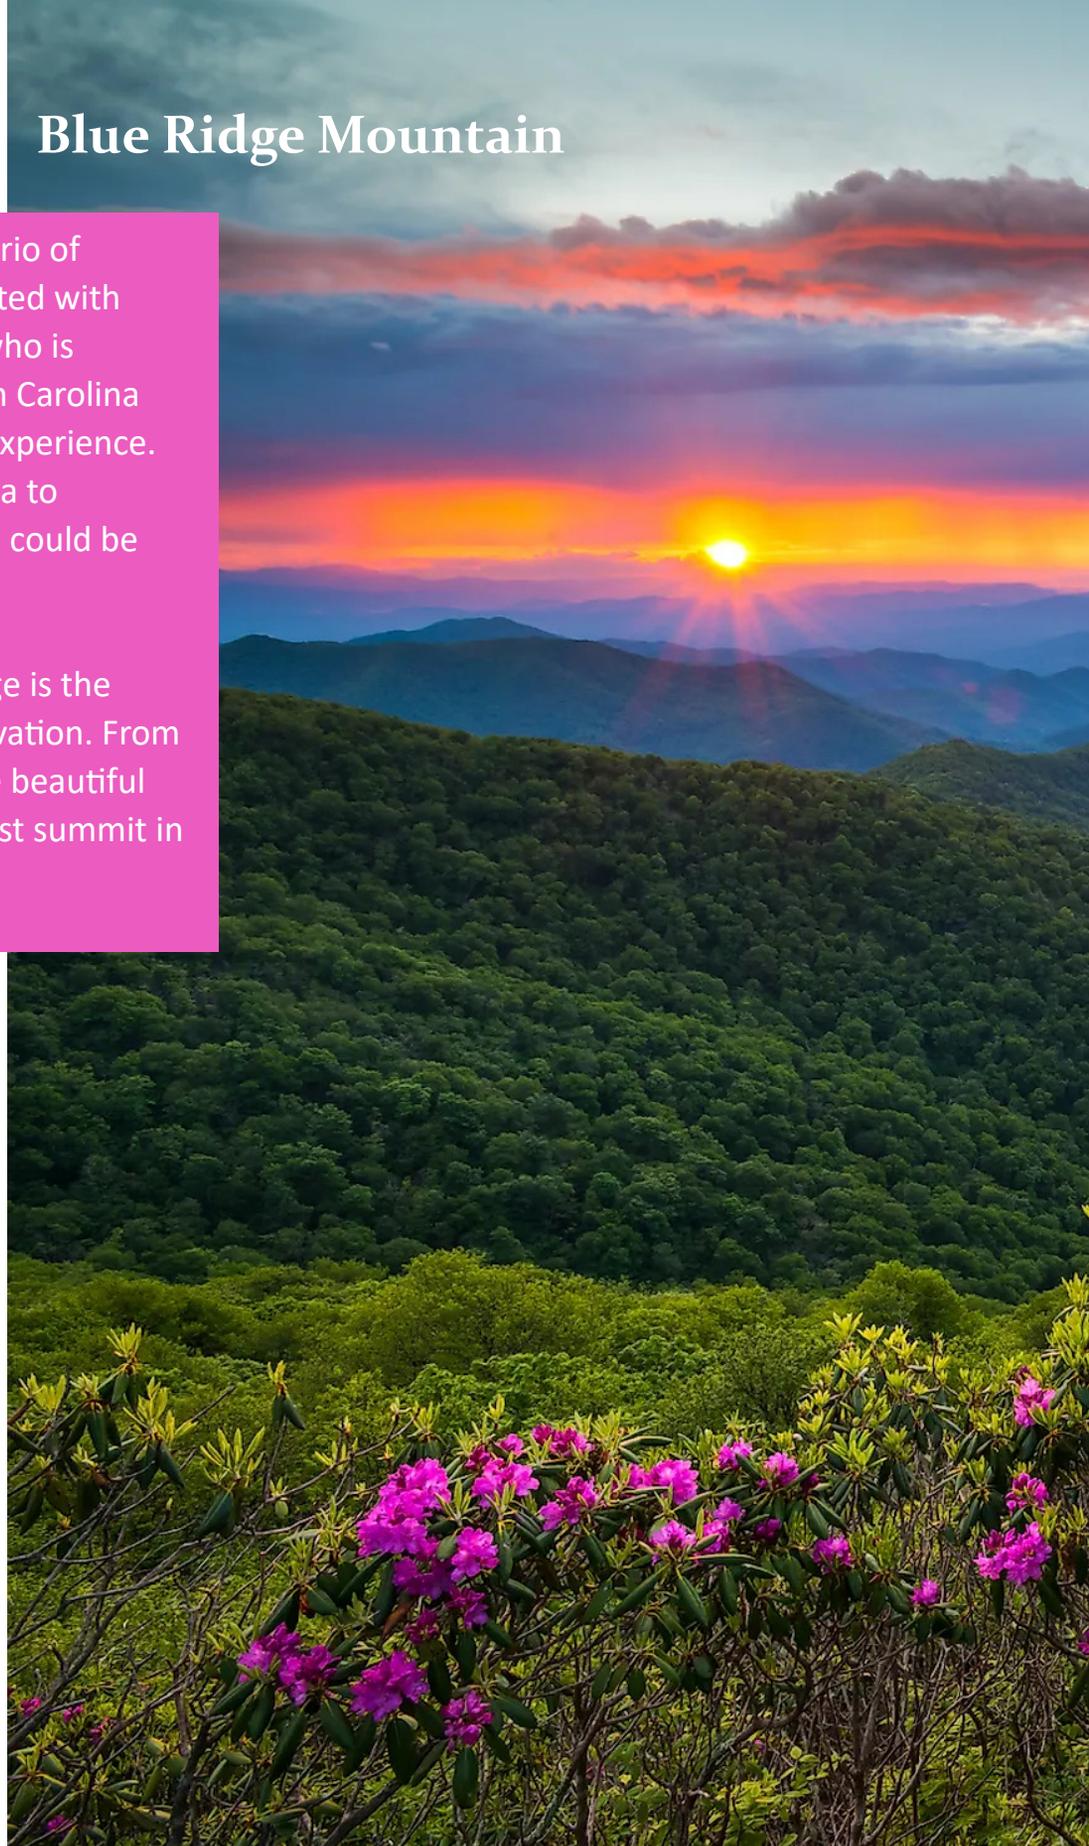

Blue Ridge Mountain

The beautiful picturesque scenario of the mountains gets complemented with the calm and resilient traveler who is unstoppable. The western North Carolina including Asheville is an exotic experience. The range is spread from Georgia to Pennsylvania. The highest peaks could be found here.

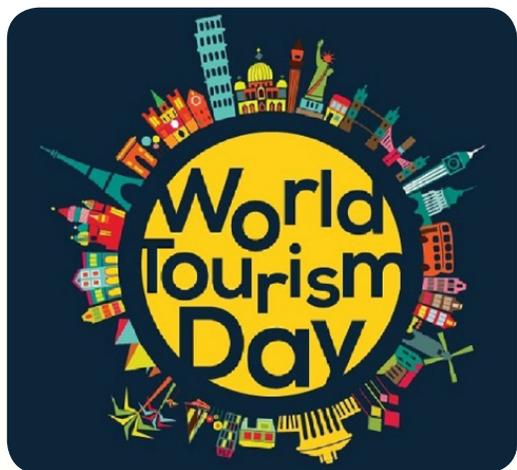

The Mount Mitchell in Blue Ridge is the highest peak with 6684 feet elevation. From the Appalachian Mountains, the beautiful Blue Ridge is arguably the highest summit in the Mississippi River..

As North Carolina expects the tourists to be more responsible, the exotic locations are ready to welcome the nature-craving souls.

The job of the tourists to make sure that the beauty stays the way it is. North Carolina is a picturesque location painted with the colors.

WORLD TOURISM DAY 2022 – THE COUNTDOWN BEGINS

The countdown of World Tourism Day 2022 is currently in progress, with sector's every segment has been invited to take an active part in this annual celebration. The UNWTO said that this year the theme of the event is 'Rethinking Tourism', the International Day of Observance, will aim on re-imagining the growth and development of tourism, both in terms of size and relevance.

On September 27th, Indonesia will arrange the official day, though all member states of UNWTO along with the non-members and private sector stakeholders are being invited to arrange their own celebrations and promote the day as well.

CAPE TOWN NAMED AS THE 11TH BEST CITY IN THE WORLD

Cape Town has been named as the 11th best city in the world for its array of cultures, food, mountains, beaches and nightlife. Enver Duminy, CEO of Cape Town Tourism (CTT), says being added to the Timeout's list of best cities in the world – beating cities like London, Tokyo and Dubai – reaffirms that Cape Town offers unparalleled experiences as an inclusive, hospitable African city, in the heart of nature.

MELBOURNE GEARS FOR NEW EVENTS ATTRACTING MILLION VISITORS

The Australian Andrews Labor Government has boosted tourism across the state, delivering a blockbuster calendar of major events that have supported businesses and powered the state's economic recovery. There is the record investment in major events that has attracted more than 4.5 million attendees to events across sport, art, theatre, food and fashion – bringing Victoria to life and delivering a huge number of visitors to the state.

ETIHAD RAIL ACHIEVED A NEW MILESTONE IN THE DEVELOPMENT OF THE NATIONAL RAIL NETWORK

Etihad Rail, the developer and operator of the UAE National Rail Network, has achieved a new milestone in the development of the National Rail Network, with the arrival of first batches of the company's new and advanced rolling stock fleet. The locomotives and wagons, which reached the UAE via Zayed and Al Musaffah Ports, will operate across the whole network upon its completion.

The achievement was announced during an event, which was organised by Etihad Rail at Al Mirfa city in the Al Dhafrah region in Abu Dhabi, to unveil the new fleet of locomotives and wagons.

CARNIVAL CRUISE ALL SET TO UNVEIL ITS SECOND ROLLER-COASTER: BOLT

BOLT, Carnival Cruise Line's second rollercoaster at sea, is about to launch, and thrill seekers will be eager to experience it once they board the Carnival Celebration. In advance of this week's test runs, a new video clip from the shipyard demonstrates the roller coaster's newly installed car on its track.

After work at the Meyer Turku shipyard in Finland is complete, the cruise company will introduce the feature aboard its brand-new Carnival Celebration ship, which is scheduled to make its debut this fall. The sister ship of Celebration, Mardi Gras, is home to the original BOLT, the first roller coaster at sea.

Wellness tourism in Costa Rica

The term “wellness” usually signifies a harmonious balance between mind, body and spirit. Costa Rica and well being go hand in hand as the exuberant country allows you to be one with nature in ways you can ever imagine of. Being a part of the Pacific Ring of Fire, Costa Rica is hallowed with numerous hot springs to take a relaxing bath or volcanic mud to smear yourself with.

One of the worst maladies of modern society is stress and the potential of wellness tourism goes far beyond what is visible to the bare eyes. Stress factor is rife across Costa Rica and the country offers itself an antidote to this social blight.

With an array of activities such as trekking, forest bath, spa and others tourists can connect themselves directly with nature. This is a unique lifestyle that is experienced only in Costa Rica and whose essence is ‘wellness’.

‘Wellness Pura Vida’ tourism strategy

Costa Rica dedicates itself in incorporating a new segment in its tourism market with the launch of its “Wellness Pura Vida” tourism strategy.

It includes unique, transformative and experiential experiences that can be carried throughout the national territory in congenial physical spaces and everything is made to happen in a tranquil natural backdrop.

A slice of paradise

The idyllic setting of Costa Rica attracts travellers from far and near to detoxify their soul and unwind the daily grind. Those looking for improving their physical and mental well-being, relieving their stress and returning as a new person can include this beautiful Latin American country in their bucket list.

There are some really innovative relaxation techniques, for example, body wraps in which the therapists use coffee, volcanic mud, tropical fruits and even chocolate to revitalize and hydrate your skin. Costa Rica is home to a number of hot springs. The mineral rich waters of these hot springs are used for hydrotherapy which facilitates positive energy flow throughout your body and relaxes you both inside out.

The typical wellness therapy of Costa Rica, have helped create one of the planet's blue zones, or longevity areas. A 2004 study by the University of Costa Rica found that mortality among Costa Ricans of 90 years of age is 10% lower in the Nicoya Peninsula, south of Guanacaste. The calcium-rich water of this area, healthy eating, family living and the "pura vida" lifestyle are secrets to the long life of the natives of this region.

Wellness tourism scene

Costa Rican tourism department owes its incoming revenue boost to the country's wellness tourism which is clearly visible in the international tourist arrival. The tourism growth in this naturally opulent Latin American country is above the global average since the past few years.

Costa Rica's geographical proximity and its superb medical infrastructure offering cost effective treatment packages make the country a natural vacationing choice. Its tourism department is highly optimistic about the outcome of their news marketing strategies which is formulated by amalgamation of various elements related to both tourism and wellness.

Wellness Pura Vida

The innovative tourism strategy of adding wellness elements in the tourism industry is called 'Wellness Pura Vida'. The target is to popularise the country's wellness activities globally and to place Costa Rica as an unmatched wellness tourism destination with enormous potential.

The strategy is not just limited to the development of outdoor activities. It implements innovative programs and offers training courses to the professionals to envisage development of communities as a whole.

Best Places to Rejuvenate

Be it the relaxing powers of the hot springs or the tranquil vibe of the tropical forests, Costa Rica abounds wonders of wellness tourism in sundry ways. Stepping into its tropical forest will take you into a different world of peace and mysticism.

To get the essence of the famous 'pura vida wellness' incorporated with 'tico' traditions these places are worth a visit for every wellness freak:

Nicoya

The Nicoya Peninsula is one of the country's blue zones and a prime wellness site. It is popular among the nature lovers, surfers and tourists of all tastes for its wellness activities, indigenous medicines, local cuisines and other modes of relaxation- everything amidst upscale luxury.

La Fortuna De San Carlos

The town's notoriety comes from its proximity to one of Costa Rica's most active volcanoes, the Arenal Volcano. Make sure to make a visit to any of the day spas that are fed by its natural hot springs. These spas are also equipped with other wellness activities that will connect you directly with the Earth's electrical energy.

Nosara

Nosara is fairly touted as the world's third significant yoga destination with its tropical forests creating the perfect ambiance for practicing this ancient meditative art. Beautiful beaches surrounding the Nicoya Peninsula is bordered by dense tropical forest and graced with some of the best surfing waves in Costa Rica. Nosara is ready to spoil every traveller with choices for leisure and adventure activities.

Orosi/Ujarras

Ujarras is a small idyll nestled amidst the abounding shrubbery of the Orosi Valley in the Cartago province. This historical site is a favourite of hikers, sightseers, swimmers and leisure tourists to unwind their cares and connect with nature in their won different ways. Being located in the vicinity of the country's most sought-after attractions, Ujarras offers a truly immersive experience of its history and culture.

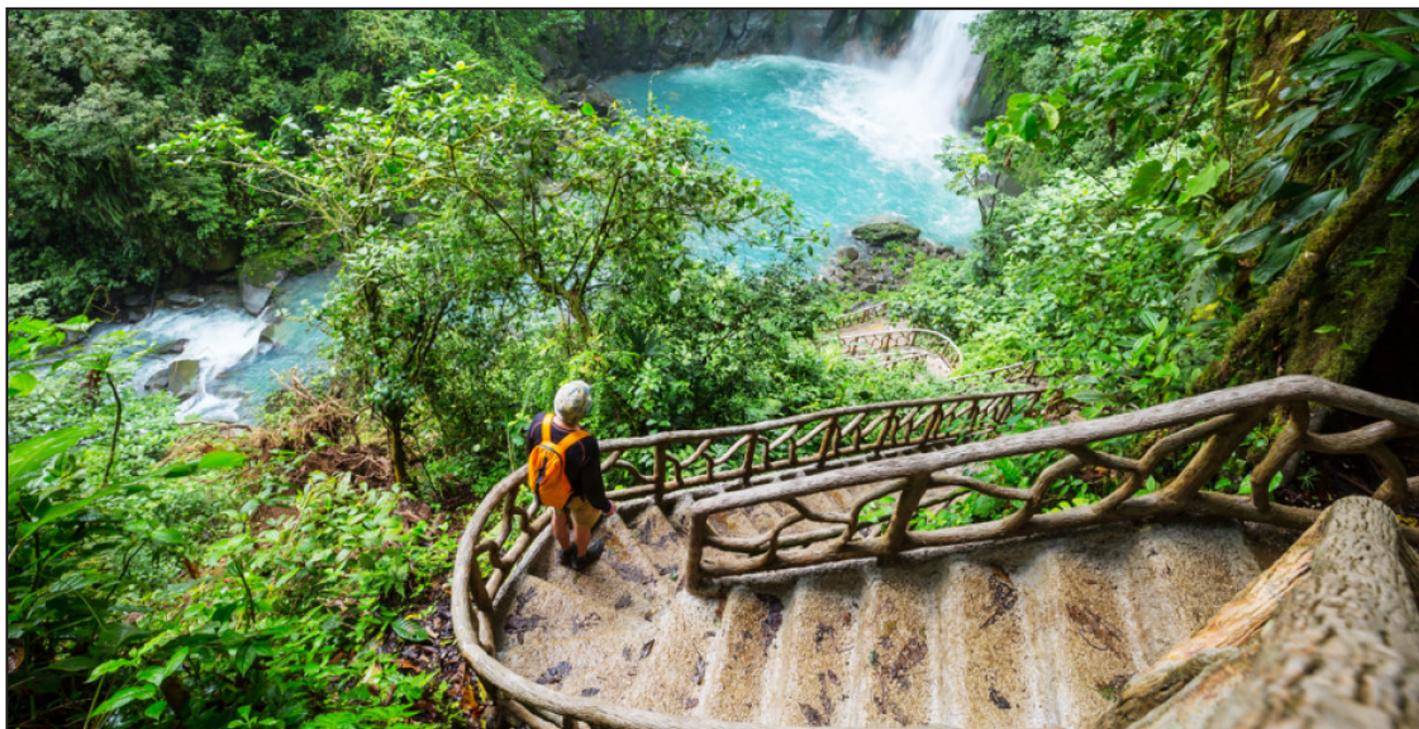

Santa Teresa

The laidback surf village of Santa Teresa is located in the northern part of the Puntarenas province of the Nicoya Peninsula. Once popular among the surfers, it is now transformed into a wellness destination for its yoga retreats located among a tranquil natural setting.

Sunbathing, beachside walks, yoga sessions and revitalizing therapies are provided to the clients for rejuvenating them physically and spiritually.

Costa Rica has great promises for tourism revival even when challenges are open in the global wellness market. The picturesque Latin American country offers an ideal haven with lavish amenities for relaxation and rejuvenation. With attention-grabbing services and natural products, the country is all set to draw wellness tourists from far-flung countries whose foundation has been laid some years back!

CALIFORNIA'S TOP CHEESE TRAILS

Spread generously over a 100 mile-long trail, you would be greeted with more than 30 cheese-makers producing nearly 100 varieties of small-batch cheese and also the world's best brie. Here is a lowdown of the top cheese tasting tours of California:

Nicassio Valley Cheese

The ideal first stop on this delectable trail is a place that is about 25 miles north of the Golden Gate Bridge, Nicassio Valley!

The Lafranchi family has been operating a dairy here ever since 1919. However, it was only in 2010 that they started creating 'farmstead cheese' (made with milk from its own cows). They have been honored with awards for their exclusive Swiss-style cheeses, all composed with organic milk.

Cowgirl Creamery

Two girls had started the now famous 'Cowgirl Creamery'. Its foundations lay in a humble old hay barn in the quaint town of Pt. Reyes Station. Currently, the barn is now known as 'Tomales Bay Foods'.

It is an elite stopover for cheese class and tasting. Try their 'Red Hawk', a triple-cream, soft rind cheese washed in brine solution imparting it a rusty hue. Slather it on olive bread for a phenomenal taste.

Point Reyes Farmstead Cheese Company

If you do crave for fresh cheese made within hours of milking, Point Reyes Farmstead Cheese Company is an ideal destination. The brand utilizes milk from the family's closed herd of 300 Holstein cows that are raised from birth right on its premises. old and salty, it is best relished with Port, pecans and pears.

Marin French Cheese Company

Ever since 1865, Marin French Cheese has been the oldest soft-ripened cheese producer in California.

A sneak peek into their production room offers view of how they continue to make it manually right from pouring the curds and whey to straining to, to filling molds where the cheese would firm up while they prepare it for aging. One should sample their 'Rouge et Noir Triple Crème Brie'.

Redwood Hill Farm

A sight of at least 300 smiling free goats cheer up visitors at a family-owned, beautiful goat dairy farming company, the Redwood Hill Farm. It is the first certified humane goat dairy in the United States. Solar powered creamery here needs to be explored here, as well as goat milk cheeses, kefirs and yogurts.

As the sun descends into the distant horizon, pamper your soul with young, soft, goat Chevre cheese, pairing it with a glass of incredible Bordeaux or Merlot and let it leave you in a delightful trance!
